

The Fallacy of Spiritual Growth

01

Fallacy 1: Spiritual maturity is measured by the capacity to serve, give, sacrifice or work for God.

Truth: Spiritual maturity is measured by the maximum Bible doctrine stored, resident, functional and operational in the soul of the believers under the power of the Holy Spirit.

Argument: The commands to do divine good works (in the Bible) are directed toward the spiritually mature believers. Religious and cultic people are giving, sacrificing and doing great works for God apart from divine power and motivation of Bible doctrine from the soul.
